Another Anecdote of John McCullough. McCullough frequently told good stories about himself, but none of them were better than that concerning an incident which occurred at Richmond, Va. The story has been published, but it is forgotten now. "The Lady of Lyons" was the play, and among the players was a maiden amateur who had the stage on the brain, and had it had. She towards to the stage of and had it bad. She tore passion to tatters, and threw a fire and fervor into her ters, and threw a fire and fervor into her love scenes which both amused and excited the audience. At times she fell from the sublime to the ridiculous, and where Claude Melnotte, in the shape of McCullough, was describing his palace on the lake of Como, repeating those tenderest words of Bulwer, the maiden's bosom was seen to heave, her eyes fill with fire, and, when he closed with the tender sentence. "Prithee, love, dost like the picture?" she threw herself in McCullough's arms, crying out in tones of superlative affection: "Oh-h-h-h C-l-a-u-d-e," lingering sweetness long drawn out. She then collapsed like a balloon, and hung, as McCullough said, like a porous plaster to his form. At this moment a disgusted newsboy in the gallery, in the same tones in which she had uttered her last exclamation, howled out: "Oh-h-h-h s-l-u-s-h." The house came down. The audience roared, clapped, howled, and howled again. McCullough burst into a ha, ha himself, and nearly dropped the love-sick matter. The girl, however, showed no signs of laughter. She carried out her part, but the next moment, with a caressing gesture, thrust her fingers into Mc-Callough's hair at the side away from the an lience, and, pulling a bunch nearly out by the roots, hissed into his ear: "How dare you laugh, sir, at that vulgar remark." The pain in his head brought the tears to his eyes, and McCullough resumed his part in the scene of love .-Chicago Times.

A Restaurant on the House-Top. Another curious hole which I penetrated to the other night is the restaurant which is run for the benefit of The Tribune employes. The Tribune is one of the tallest buildings in town, and the rod which rises from its tower is on a plane of imposingness with the spire of Trinity church itself. The composing room of the newspaper is on the top, or ninth floor. Just off the composing room is the small and vapor-filled stereotyping room. In the wall of the stereotyping room about half way to the ceiling is a small door, reached by a short ladder, which leads to a nar row, iron spiral staircase.

Following this to the top you find your self in the basement of the tower of The Tribune building, and another short flight of half a dozen steps brings you into the restaurant, a very comfortable appearing room with a door opening on the roof of The Tribune building. A trip to The Tribune restaurant is almost as tortuous as the windings of the fugitive young Charles II through fair Rosamond's labyrinth at Woodstock with Cromwell's soldiers on his heels; almost too tortuous o please the common sense views of the ousiness men in the neighboring offices who patronized it for awhile, but have given it over to the compositors and reporters of The Tribune. The keeper and his young wife live here in a manner curiously commingling the romantic with the baldly practical.-New York Cor. Kansas City Times, Shrewdness and Tact to the Last. "You people are missing the more interesting features of Uncle Billie Sharon's death-bed," said a recent arrival from San Francisco. "The deed of trust a steamer bound from New York to by which he gave all his property out and Havana. She was supposed to he out to his children and grandchildren had a string to it. The old man preserved his business shrewdness and tact to the last. Sharon is a good deal of a Shakespearean student, and when-in his prime-he had Widow Cliquot's jugs he could quote the bard by the hour. He remembered King Lear, and so, after he had made and signed the trust which virtually left him a pauper he suddenly raised his head. beckoned to Gen. The Influence of a Great Man's Name. A few years ago Senator Lamar, finding hat he had a weak-looking Jersey bul in New York to take four of the six calf on his hands, decided to name it children lately bitten by a mad dog Smator George C. Vest, thinking that perhaps this great title would put life blood into its veins. He was not mistaken. We learn from the Louisville Courier-Journal, that a "temporary injunction has been granted the street temporary injunction in the street temporary injunction has been granted the street temporary injunction in the street temporary i chief of McPherson's herd. The other receiver." We trust this may not day it was taken to the state fair of New

The Truffle Industry in France. This is the season for gathering French truffles, and the truffle-growing districts between the Alps and the Rhone are very busy, the single department of Vaucluse yielding nearly $500,000 worth in a good year. The finest, however, come from Perigord. Truffles are often adulterated and "jockeyed." Hollow places are filled with clay, or several small ones made to appear as a single large one. In Paris, even, imitation truffles are made of potatoes coated with earth from the Perigord district, or pale ones are blackened with oak dyes. -Paris Letter.

Net Profits of 350 Per Cent. In the trial of a case at Glasonw, Scot land, recently it came out that a clothing manufacturer was employing a number of girls, aged from 15 to 18 years, at 50 cents a week for fifty hours' work, and he consequently was able to reckon his net profits at about 350 per cent. n work and material.

Good Cobbler Ne'er Forsake Your Last. SCROFULA CURED.

Dr. L. A. Guild, All inta, says: B. B. B. cured Wm. Sealock of a terrible case of Scrofula, which affected the entire elbow joint.

ANOTHER CASE.

EAST POINT, GA., April 2, 1884. My wife has been afflicted with a terrible form of Scrofuls for over ten years. Physicians exhausted their skill, and numerous patent medicines were used without benefit Her condition grew worse—her appe tite failed, attended with debility, emaciat falling out of the hair and a frightful breaking diseased and painful (some calling it white swelling), with sleepless nights and a general feeling of horror. Some friend said that B. B. B. would cure her. I procured it and placed her upon its use, and to the utter aston of all who knew her the recovery was rapid and complete. It acted as a powerful tonic, gave her a splendid appetite and acted upon the kidneys. A few bottles did the work The action of B. B. B. was decidedly quick, and the medicine cost but little. I advise my friends to use it as a blood purifier. Yours truly, R. M. LAWSON.

BLOOD POISON.

Mr. A. P. W., of Hampton, Ga., has recently emerged from one of the most remarkable emerged from one of the most remarkable cases of Blood Poison on record. His body and limbs had no less than four hundred small ulcers—his bones tormented him with pains—his appetite failed—his kidneys presented frightful symptoms—and all doctors and 190 bothles of the most popular Blood Poison remedy failed to give him any relief. He secured B. B. B., the concentrated quick cure, and five bottles healed up the ulcers, relieved his pain, cured his kidneys, restored his appetite, and made him a healthy and happy man. Any one can secure his full name and correspond with him.
